Course Description

This interdisciplinary course will equip students with the skills and tools they need to support and lead change-based initiatives for a better world. Building on foundational principles of community engagement, students will learn about theories of change, systems thinking, organizational theory and structures, and facilitation techniques and tools used to support community change. Case studies of real-life change initiatives will ground these theories in real-life contexts that help students to understand both how change happens and how individuals can make change when tackling real-world issues. Students will also be provided with an opportunity to work with the Office of Community Engagement on a collaborative project that applies learning towards a real-life community issue.

Intended Learning Outcomes (ILOs)

Upon successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. Identify and discuss foundational changemaking theories and their connections to current social issues locally, nationally, and globally.
2. Demonstrate the tools and skills required to plan and host a successful community change project.
3. Facilitate a community change dialogue project in a group setting by applying relevant tools and skills that reflect an understanding of foundational changemaking theories.
4. Identify and create recommendations for a community change project opportunity that applies learning from all 3 course phases: theory, tools and skills, and practice.

Course Structure

This course will be offered virtually, with mixed synchronous and asynchronous components. Students will be required to attend weekly, synchronous classes on Zoom each Monday between 8:30am–11:20am. During some weeks, class time will be allocated to asynchronous work such as listening to episodes of the Art of Change podcast or completing group dialogue project work. The structure of the semester will span three interconnected and integrated phases, as outlined below.

- Phase 1: Theory (weeks 1-6) – Spanning weeks 1 through 6, the first phase will involve building our understanding of changemaking theories and our capacity to map out systems within which change processes occur (aligned with ILO 1). An emphasis will be placed on listening to the Art of Change podcast and engaging actively in class discussions as we explore change from different perspectives such as activism, organizational change, the role of government, and beyond. In alignment with phase 2, the first phase will also be used to begin honing our skills for virtual dialogue and collaboration.
- Phase 2: Tools & Skills (weeks 7-9) – Spanning weeks 7 through 9, the second phase will add a community-engaged dialogue element to the course with a focus on developing collaboration, project management, virtual dialogue, and facilitation skills to plan and deliver a community change dialogue project (aligned with ILO 2). Aligned with phase 1, the community change dialogue project will be grounded in foundational changemaking theories and will be planned in a group setting with local partner organizations.
- Phase 3: Practice (weeks 10-13) – Spanning weeks 10 through 13, the third phase will focus on applying the knowledge and skills gained in phases 1 and 2 to conduct and reflect upon the outcomes of a community change dialogue project (aligned with ILO 3).
- Exam Period: There is no Registrar-scheduled exam for this course. Students are expected to use time during the April exam period to demonstrate learning from all three phases of the course by completing the Culminating Assignment (aligned with ILO 4). For additional details about the Culminating Assignment

Key Course Themes

Students will engage with several key themes throughout the semester which will be introduced in the Art of Change Podcast, in class discussions and lectures. Major themes integrated into the semester include:

- Changemaking Theories: Theories of change, systems thinking, organizational change, and community change will be introduced to students in Phase 1 of the course as foundational perspectives to inform student learning. These core theories will inform group project work and individual reflection assignments throughout Phases 2 and 3 the semester.
- Local and Global Issues: Early on in Phase 1 we will review a range of local and global issues and contextualize them within larger change processes. Local and global issues will be integrated through required class readings, podcast episodes, and through in-class discussions. Select current issues will be revisited throughout Phases 2 and 3 of the semester.
- Community Engagement: Underpinning the entire class will be a focus on how change takes shape in and with communities. Principles of Community Engagement will be introduced early on, leading towards the development of tools and skills for working alongside community groups. Students will also have the opportunity to work with the Office of Community Engagement on a collaborative project that applies learning about the Principles of Community Engagement towards a real-life community issue.
- Community Change Topic(s): As the semester unfolds, students will work in interdisciplinary teams on a topic of interest to a local partner organization. Project topics will comprise a significant focus of our work together during the second half of the term.

Required Course Materials

Students are not required to purchase any texts for this course. All required readings, podcasts, and other course materials will be made available through Avenue to Learn and the Art of Change Podcast.

Art of Change Podcast

Art of Change podcast episodes that are approximately 30-40 minutes long. Each episode features one or more guest speaker(s), whose knowledge, experience, and/or expertise relates to one or more of the weekly course themes, which include, theories of change; systems thinking; activism, advocacy, and change; government and policy change; organizational change; and change timelines and contexts. Students will be required to listen to podcast episodes and connect the practical, on-the-ground experiences of the podcast guests to the theoretical knowledge they will learn in class. The podcast is hosted on Anchor and the link to the podcast episodes will be provided to students on a weekly basis. Some weeks, class time will be allocated to allow students to listen to the podcast, while other weeks will require podcast listening before class. Whether listening to the podcast before class or during class time, students are highly encouraged to engage in some physical activity (e.g., going for a walk) while listening to the podcast— our goal here being to encourage movement that supports your health and well-being while also stimulating brain function away from sitting in front of a screen. When in class, students will be asked to make connections to theoretical concepts and map out the various stakeholders, timelines, leverage points, barriers, etc. mentioned in the episode. The Art of Change podcast can be accessed here: : <https://anchor.fm/mac-occe>

Reflection 1 (15%): Due Jan 22nd, 2024 at 11:59 PM

This course is focused on helping you to define what goes into making change – at individual, organizational, and systems levels. As such, this first reflection is an opportunity for you to reflect on why you're interested in making change, your current understanding of change, and your aspirations for the course overall. Answer the following questions in your reflection:

- What is your current understanding of change in the context of community engagement?
  - Based on this understanding, what ingredients do you think are the most crucial to fostering change?

- What are you hoping to gain as a result of your learning within this course?
  - What skills do you hope to gain from this course and how do you anticipate using these skills in your own life?
  - What is an issue of interest to you? How do you hope to bring about change related to this issue?

Students must follow these guidelines when submitting their reflections:

- Written reflections must be approximately 3-4 pages in length. Students must use Arial 12pt. font, double spaced. Ensure that your full name, student number, and date are included on the title page.

- Video or audio reflections must be 4-5 minutes in length.

- All reflections must be submitted under the Assignments tab on Avenue to Learn by the specified deadline.

- Please submit all written documents in Microsoft Word format to allow for suggested changes and comments to be made more easily

Facilitation (10%): In-class Facilitation (5%) + Facilitation During Dialogue Delivery (5%)

Reflection 2 (15%): Due March 11th, 2024 at 11:59 PM

Reflection 2 asks you to pursue one of the following two options.

Option 1) Podcast Reflection - Listen to and reflect upon one of Art of Change podcast episodes that stood out to you during the term. Selecting one episode between episodes 2-13, please (1) identify the change-making strategies and tools mentioned in the episode, and (2) discuss how you might apply some of the strategies, tools, or other relevant learnings towards your upcoming Group Dialogue project. Consider the following in your reflection:

- What strategies and tools were mentioned in this episode?
  - What were the implications of the strategies that were used?
  - What was the role of networks, alliances, and movements?
  - What tactics worked? What tactics didn't work?
  - What was the methodology?
- How do the themes discussed in this episode tie back to course material (readings, lectures, discussions, other podcast episodes, etc.)
  - Connect the strategies used in the change initiative with 2-3 theories or other change examples explored in class.
- How might you adopt some of the strategies or tools discussed in the episode towards your Group Dialogue project?

Option 2) City of Hamilton Budget Delegations - Listen to and reflect upon three individual budget delegations that took place on November 6th, 2023 or/and January 16th, 2024. After outlining the individual delegations, you observed, reflect on the following (1) identify the changemaking strategies proposed by the delegates, and (2) discuss how the delegates were responded to by members of the budget committee. Consider the following in your reflection:

- What changemaking strategies did the delegates propose?
  - What were the implications of the strategies proposed?
  - What was the role of networks, alliances, and movements in shaping ideas brought forward by the delegates?
  - What was the response of committee members to the proposals?
- How do the themes raised in the delegations tie back to course material (readings, lectures, discussions, other podcast episodes, etc.)

o Connect the strategies or proposals of delegates with 2-3 theories or other change examples explored in class.

- How were the delegates received by committee members? How were they treated as citizens raising concerns? What principles of community engagement did you observe in this interaction or what principles might you have hoped to see more of?

Students must follow these guidelines when submitting their reflections:

- Written reflections must be approximately 3-4 pages in length. Students must use Arial 12pt. font, double spaced. Ensure that your full name, student number, and date are included on the title page.

- Video or audio reflections must be 4-5 minutes in length.

- All reflections must be submitted under the Assignments tab on Avenue to Learn by the specified deadline.

- Please submit all written documents in Microsoft Word format to allow for suggested changes and comments to be made more easily

Art of Change Final (15%): Due April 15th, 2024 at 11:59 pm

The end-of-term evaluation (completed during April exam period) will make up 15% of students' final grade. The end-of-term evaluation asks you to pursue one of the following two options.

Option 1) Art of Change Proposal (15%) – The culminating assignment in this course will ask you to apply the skills you developed over the course of the semester for one of the following situations:

- Local Changemaking Issue Arising from Course: An opportunity identified from within any aspect of the course.

- Any Changemaking Issue Arising from Personal Interests: An opportunity related to your own personal interests that may help to inform future pursuits—academic or otherwise—and serve as a roadmap

Once you have identified an issue that has an opportunity for future change, you will be tasked with submitting an “Art of Change Proposal” that includes the following components (all of which will be modelled through class activities during the semester):

- Introduction & Context (1 page maximum): Frame what the document is focused on, assuming reader has no knowledge of the issue, while also providing some initial context that sets the tone for the remainder of the proposal.

- Opportunity for Change (3 pages or less): An analysis of the problem, the opportunity(s) and the system at large. What is the current situation? What is the problem? What is/are the opportunity(s) at hand? A visual map showing the issue, the stakeholders, timelines, etc. with an analysis of the levers available (as per Meadows 4 quadrants)

- Conditions for Success (1 page): Using the conditions for success chart used in the group project, what is your understanding of the feasibility of this opportunity.

- Stakeholder Analysis (2 pages or less): Who might need to be engaged to make this change? Which stakeholders might be possible partners? Which voices might be elevated in this process?

- 2023 Actions (1 page): What steps would you take to move this change forward over the next year. Where might those leading this initiative need to focus their efforts based on your analysis? This should include short (1-2 month), medium (3-6 month), and long-term (6-12 month) actions.

Option 2) Art of Change Reflection (15%)

How has the material you have been exposed to in the course contributed to your learning, impacted you as an individual and impacted on your understanding of how to foster change initiatives and carry out community engagement work? Make connections to 6-7 pieces of content from the course and cite sources appropriately.

Consider the following in your reflection:

- Has your understanding of change in the context of community engagement changed from what you described in Reflection 1? If so, how?

- In reflection 1, you identified skills that you hoped to gain from this course and how you anticipated using them in your own life. Was this course helpful in supporting you to build those skills?

- Has this course equipped you with the skills and tools required to bring about change related to the issue you identified in Reflection 1?

- Over the duration of this course, what have you learned about the importance of understanding a system and the conditions for success of a change concept?

- Are there other issues you have learned about in class that have inspired you to get involved in change processes beyond the course? If so, what might your involvement look like?
- How do you hope to build upon what you have learned in this course to foster future learning? Why is this important?

You are expected to write about your own thoughts and perspectives in the first person. For this paper, you should be integrating in-course learning (through lectures, reading, other course material and class discussions) that also includes learning gained from your collaborative group project (partner meetings, the dialogue planning and delivery process, and the teamwork itself).

FORMAT: Students may choose one of the following approaches to this assignment:

A) Written reflections must be approximately 7-8 pages in length. Students must use Arial 12pt. font, double spaced. Ensure that your full name, student number, and date are included on the title page.

B) Video or audio reflections must be 7-8 minutes in length.

Absences, Missed Work, Illness

McMaster Student Absence Form (MSAF): In the event of an absence for medical or other reasons, students should review and follow the Academic Regulation in the Undergraduate Calendar ‘Requests for Relief for Missed Academic Term Work’.

Copyright and Recording

Students are advised that lectures, demonstrations, performances, and any other course material provided by an instructor include copyright protected works. The Copyright Act and copyright law protect every original literary, dramatic, musical and artistic work, including lectures by University instructors. The recording of lectures, tutorials, or other methods of instruction may occur during a course. Recording may be done by either the instructor for the purpose of authorized distribution, or by a student for the purpose of personal study. Students should be aware that their voice and/or image may be recorded by others during the class. Please speak with the instructor if this is a concern for you.

Academic Integrity

You are expected to exhibit honesty and use ethical behaviour in all aspects of the learning process. Academic credentials you earn are rooted in principles of honesty and academic integrity. It is your responsibility to understand what constitutes academic dishonesty. Academic dishonesty is to knowingly act or fail to act in a way that results or could result in unearned academic credit or advantage. This behaviour can result in serious consequences, e.g. the grade of zero on an assignment, loss of credit with a notation on the transcript (notation reads: “Grade of F assigned for academic dishonesty”), and/or suspension or expulsion from the university. For information on the various types of academic dishonesty please refer to the Academic Integrity Policy, located at <https://secretariat.mcmaster.ca/university-policies-procedures-guidelines/>

The following illustrates only three forms of academic dishonesty:

- plagiarism, e.g. the submission of work that is not one’s own or for which other credit has been obtained.

- improper collaboration in group work.
- copying or using unauthorized aids in tests and examinations.

Conduct Expectations

As a McMaster student, you have the right to experience, and the responsibility to demonstrate respectful and dignified interactions within all of our living, learning and working communities. These expectations are described in the Code of Student Rights & Responsibilities (the 'Code'). All students share the responsibility of maintaining a positive environment for the academic and personal growth of all McMaster community members, whether in person or online. It is essential that students be mindful of their interactions online, as the Code remains in effect in virtual learning environments. The Code applies to any interactions that adversely affect, disrupt, or interfere with reasonable participation in University activities. Student disruptions or behaviours that interfere with university functions on online platforms (e.g. use of Avenue 2 Learn, WebEx or Zoom for delivery), will be taken very seriously and will be investigated. Outcomes may include restriction or removal of the involved students' access to these platforms.

Academic Accommodation for Religious, Indigenous or Spiritual Observances (RISO)

Students requiring academic accommodation based on religious, indigenous or spiritual observances should follow the procedures set out in the RISO policy. Students should submit their request to their Faculty Office normally within 10 working days of the beginning of term in which they anticipate a need for accommodation or to the Registrar's Office prior to their examinations. Students should also contact their instructors as soon as possible to make alternative arrangements for classes, assignments, and tests.

Learning Supports

Please let us (your instructors) know if there are any specific supports that may be useful to your learning in this class. Where possible, we will try to provide support. The Student Accessibility Service offers consultation about effective learning strategies, essay writing, and study habits; accommodations, assistive technology, advocacy and general support for students with disabilities. Contact: sas.mcmaster.ca MUSC B107

If you have a disability and are registered with SAS, they will help you sort out what accommodations would be helpful to you so that you may successfully complete this course. Additionally, they will provide you with a letter for us requesting accommodation. Please feel free to contact us about this so that we can work out a plan that will support your learning.

The Student Wellness Centre provides health services including personal and psychological counseling and academic success counseling. wellness.mcmaster.ca MUSC B101 and B106

Academic Accommodation of Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities who require academic accommodation must contact Student Accessibility Services (SAS) at 905-525-9140 ext. 28652 or sas@mcmaster.ca to make arrangements with a Program Coordinator. For further information, consult McMaster University's Academic Accommodation of Students with Disabilities policy.

Faculty of Social Sciences E-mail Communication Policy

Effective September 1, 2010, it is the policy of the Faculty of Social Sciences that all email communication sent from students to instructors (including TAs), and from students to staff, must originate from the student's own McMaster University e-mail account. This policy protects confidentiality and confirms the identity of the student. It is the student's responsibility to ensure that communication is sent to the university from a McMaster account. If an instructor becomes aware that a communication has come from an alternate address, the instructor may not reply at his or her discretion.

Course Modification

The instructor and university reserve the right to modify elements of the course during the term. The university may change the dates and deadlines for any or all courses in extreme circumstances. If either type of modification becomes necessary, reasonable notice and communication with the students will be given with explanation and the opportunity to comment on changes. It is the responsibility of the 21 student to check their McMaster email and course websites weekly during the term and to note any changes.

Extreme Circumstances

The University reserves the right to change the dates and deadlines for any or all courses in extreme circumstances (e.g., severe weather, labour disruptions, etc.). Changes will be communicated through regular McMaster communications channels.
